Excess Protection Insurance

Cover to reimburse the excess you pay

Excess protection cover is designed to reimburse the excess you pay on successful motor insurance claims for damage, loss, or destruction of your vehicle, including accidents, fire, theft, and vandalism. If you are at fault, reimbursement is made once the insurer provides settlement confirmation and proof of your excess payment. If you are not, or only partly at fault, and the excess isn't recovered within six months, the policy will pay it back up to your annual limit.

The policy only applies after your motor policy excess has been paid, and it will pay no more than the annual claim limit stated in your schedule, after reaching this limit the cover ends.
